

we are 2 of 23 in torino

Defy Convention: With 3,000 students and 34,000 alumni living across the globe, Clarkson University does not let size limit the impact we have on the world.

Erik Cole

Craig Conroy

two golden knights alumni named to the 2006 USA olympic men's ice hockey team

Whether it's leading innovative world-class research and business practices or rising to the pinnacle of sport, our accomplishments speak for themselves. For more about how we defy convention, visit www.clarkson.edu.

MORE HIGHLIGHTS

One in 12 Clarkson alumni is already a CEO or senior executive of a company.

Nine Goldwater Scholars named in the last six years hail from Clarkson.

2004 IBM Linux Challenge:
Clarkson had one of two winners from North America.

2005 EPA Research Fellowships:
One of 15 awarded went to Clarkson

2005 Unisys Tuxmaster Competition:
1st and 2nd place winners from Clarkson

2005 Award Winning CEO Club:
Among 175 top universities, Clarkson brought home the 1st place trophy - Most Outstanding Chapter, Best Student-Run Business, Best Online Networking Application, and two 2nd place finishes in the categories of CEO Marketing Plan and CEO Business Plan.

Clarkson is the 8th smallest of the 249 nationally ranked research institutions.
(U.S. News & World Report, 2006)

Clarkson's School of Business Global Supply Chain Management Program ranks among the top 20 in the country.
(U.S. News & World Report, 2006)

Clarkson University is one of the top 40 entrepreneurial colleges.
(Entrepreneur Magazine, 2005)

Clarkson's Wallace H. Coulter School of Engineering ranks among the nation's best undergraduate engineering programs.
(U.S. News & World Report, 2006)

Clarkson distinguishes itself as the 24th ranked graduate program in environmental engineering, 62nd in civil engineering, and 85th in mechanical engineering.
(U.S. News & World Report, 2005)